Summary of Grievance:

Being denied adequately medical treatment by the density, medical department, and the Sheriff.

Details of Grievance:

Please be specific:

On January 22nd, 2019 offender Kareem A. Olajuwon #31261, submitted an sick call request in to be seen by the density. Upon being seen by the facility density doctor he along with his assistant performed xrays to the bottom right back teeth and determined that the teeth needed to be extracted because blood was coming from the gum.

This procedure was completed and the offender believed his problem was over; however, on July 2nd, 2019 the offender complained again that his mouth were tender, sore and stills continued to bleed all day everyday. The doctor, density ordered a special kind of mouth wash and pain pill and gave instruction to rinse mouth with solution twice a day and the bleeding will stop.

In September 2019, offender Kareem A. Olajuwon #31261 submitted another sick call request and was seen by the doctor density again for his bleeding in the mouth. Subsequently another xray way done. The doctor density stated to his assistant that he should have pulled teeth #32 first instead of #31.

Summary of Grievance:

Cruel and unusual punishment.

Details of Grievance:

Please be specific:

Offender Kareem A. Olajuwon #31261, is suffering from soreness of the mouth, pain and bleeding gum. Olajuwon, has been seen numerous time by medical and density and was informed by Dr. Broth, that there was nothing else he can do to stop the bleeding because of gum disease. On January 22, 2019 Dr. Broth, extracted the teeth number 31 instead of number 32. The gum has not heal as of yet and Olajuwon has seen this density all the way up until September 2019 complaining about the pain and suffering and the bloody gum. The special kind of mouth wash that Olajuwon was receiving has expired. Being under the care of the Sheriff, and receiving improperly medical treatment is considered cruel and unusual punishment especially at the rate of blood I daily lose. I suffered in pain all day long and be told by nurses that there is nothing they can do. I assume then medical and the Sheriff, will just allow me to keep bleeding until I bleed out and die.

11/26/19 13:18	KAREEM OLAJUWAN	Appeal	Please provide me with the name of the person answering my grievance. Thank you. In addition to that I base my appeal on the fact that I'm receiving inadequately medical care by the employees of mediko. There is no where in life existence whereas a human being whether free in society or incarcerated should be denied proper medical treatment. In the case at hand medical as well as the density knows that the mouth wash is not stopping my mouth from bleeding all day and all night with blood clot coming out of my mouth the size of a nickel. My question to medical and the density is this; Do I just continually to heavily bleed the way I'm bleeding until I bleed out and die or are you going to give me the medical service required to stop the bleeding???

I'm sending this to you because it looks like this is a grievance

Squamous cell carcinoma

Squamous cell carcinomas (SCCs), also known as epidermoid carcinomas, comprise a number of different types of cancer that result from squamous cells.^[1] These cells form the surface of the skin and lining of hollow organs in the body and line the respiratory and digestive tracts.^[1]

Common types include:

- Squamous cell skin cancer: A type of skin cancer
- Squamous-cell carcinoma of the lung: A type of lung cancer
- Squamous cell thyroid carcinoma: A type of thyroid cancer
- Esophageal squamous cell carcinoma: A type of esophageal cancer
- Squamous-cell carcinoma of the vagina: A type of vaginal cancer

Despite sharing the name "squamous cell carcinoma", the SCCs of different body sites can show differences in their presented symptoms, natural history, prognosis, and response to treatment.

Contents

By body location

- Head and neck cancer
- Thyroid
- Esophagus
- Lung
- Penis
- Prostate
- Vagina and cervix
- Bladder

Diagnosis

- Classification
- Tissue of origin
- Other histopathologic subtypes

References

By body location

Human papillomavirus infection has been associated with SCCs of the oropharynx, lung,^[2] fingers,^[3] and anogenital region.

Head and neck cancer

About 90%^[4] of cases of head and neck cancer (cancer of the mouth, nasal cavity, nasopharynx, throat and associated structures) are due to SCC.

Thyroid

Primary squamous cell thyroid carcinoma shows an aggressive biological phenotype resulting in poor prognosis for patients.^[5]

Esophagus

Esophageal cancer may be due to either esophageal squamous cell carcinoma (ESCC) or adenocarcinoma (EAC). SCCs tend to occur closer to the mouth, while adenocarcinomas occur closer to the stomach. Dysphagia (difficulty swallowing, solids worse than liquids) and painful swallowing are common initial symptoms. If the disease is localized, surgical removal of the affected esophagus may offer the possibility of a cure. If the disease has spread, chemotherapy and radiotherapy are commonly used.

Lung

When associated with the lung, it is typically a centrally located large-cell cancer (nonsmall-cell lung cancer). It often has a paraneoplastic syndrome causing ectopic production of parathyroid hormone-related protein, resulting in hypercalcemia, but paraneoplastic syndrome is more commonly associated with small-cell lung cancer. It is primarily due to smoking.^[6]

Penis

Human papillomavirus (HPV), primarily HPV 16 and 18, are strongly implicated in the development of SCC of the penis. Three carcinomas in situ are associated with SCCs of the penis:

1. Bowen's disease presents as leukoplakia on the shaft. Around a third of cases progress to SCC.
2. Erythroplasia of Queyrat, a variation of Bowen's disease, presents as erythroplakia on the glans.
3. Bowenoid papulosis, which histologically resembles Bowen disease, presents as reddish papules.^[7]

Prostate

When associated with the prostate, squamous cell carcinoma is very aggressive in nature. It is difficult to detect as no increase in prostate-specific antigen levels is seen, meaning that the cancer is often diagnosed at an advanced stage.

Vagina and cervix

Vaginal SCC spreads slowly and usually stays near the vagina, but may spread to the lungs and liver. This is the most common type of vaginal cancer.

Bladder

Most bladder cancer is transitional cell, but bladder cancer associated with schistosomiasis is often SCC.

Diagnosis

Medical history, physical examination and medical imaging may suggest a squamous cell carcinoma, but a biopsy for histopathology generally establishes the diagnosis.

Classification

Cancer can be considered a very large and exceptionally heterogeneous family of malignant diseases, with squamous cell carcinomas comprising one of the largest subsets.^{[8][9][10]} All SCC lesions are thought to begin via the repeated, uncontrolled division of cancer stem cells of epithelial lineage or characteristics. SCCs arise from squamous cells, which are flat cells that line many areas of the body. Accumulation of these cancer cells causes a microscopic focus of abnormal cells that are, at least initially, locally confined within the specific tissue in which the progenitor cell resided. This condition is called squamous cell carcinoma in situ, and it is diagnosed when the tumor has not yet penetrated the basement membrane or other delimiting structure to invade adjacent tissues. Once the lesion has grown and progressed to the point where it has breached, penetrated, and infiltrated adjacent structures, it is referred to as "invasive" squamous cell carcinoma. Once a carcinoma becomes invasive, it is able to spread to other organs and cause the formation of a metastasis, or "secondary tumor".

Tissue of origin

The International Classification of Diseases for Oncology (ICD-O) system lists a number of morphological subtypes and variants of malignant squamous cell neoplasms, including:^[11]

- Papillary thyroid carcinoma (code 8050/3)
- Verrucous squamous cell carcinoma (code 8051/3)
- Papillary squamous cell carcinoma (code 8052/3)
- Squamous cell carcinoma (code 8070/3)

A large head and neck squamous cell carcinoma of the tongue as seen on CT imaging

Biopsy of a highly differentiated squamous cell carcinoma of the mouth Haematoxylin & eosin stain

Photograph of a squamous cell carcinoma: Tumour is on the left, obstructing the bronchus (lung). beyond the tumour, the bronchus is inflamed and contains mucus.

- Large-cell keratinizing squamous cell carcinoma (code 8071/3)
- Large-cell nonkeratinizing squamous cell carcinoma (code 8072/3)
- Small-cell keratinizing squamous cell carcinoma (code 8073/3)
- Spindle-cell squamous cell carcinoma (code 8074/3) It is also known as spindle-cell carcinoma,^[12] and is a subtype characterized by spindle-shaped atypical cells.^[13]
- Adenoid/pseudoglandular squamous cell carcinoma (code 8075/3)
- Intraepidermal squamous cell carcinoma (code 8081/3)
- Lymphoepithelial carcinoma (code 8082/3)

Other variants of SCCs are recognized under other systems, such as keratoacanthoma.

Other histopathologic subtypes

- Erythroplasia of Queyrat
- Marjolin's ulcer is a type of SCC that arises from a nonhealing ulcer or burn wound. More recent evidence, however, suggests that genetic differences exist between SCC and Marjolin's ulcer, which were previously underappreciated.^[14]

One method of classifying squamous cell carcinomas is by their appearance under microscope. Subtypes may include:

- Adenoid squamous cell carcinoma (also known as pseudoglandular squamous cell carcinoma) is characterized by a tubular microscopic pattern and keratinocyte acantholysis.^[13]
- Basaloid squamous cell carcinoma is characterized by a predilection for the tongue base.^[13]
- Clear-cell squamous cell carcinoma (also known as clear-cell carcinoma of the skin) is characterized by keratinocytes that appear clear as a result of hydropic swelling.^[13]
- Signet ring-cell squamous cell carcinoma (occasionally rendered as signet ring-cell squamous cell carcinoma) is a histological variant characterized by concentric rings composed of keratin and large vacuoles corresponding to markedly dilated endoplasmic reticulum.^[13] These vacuoles grow to such an extent that they radically displace the cell nucleus toward the cell membrane, giving the cell a distinctive superficial resemblance to a "signet ring" when viewed under a microscope.

Adenoid squamous cell carcinoma Basaloid squamous cell carcinoma Clear-cell squamous cell carcinoma Spindle-cell squamous cell carcinoma

Prevention

Studies have found evidences for an association between diet and skin cancers, including SCC. The consumption of high-fat dairy foods increases SCC tumor risk in people with previous skin cancer. Green leafy vegetables may help prevent development of subsequent SCC and multiple studies found that raw vegetables, citrus fruits and noncitrus fruits are significantly protective against SSC risk.^{[15][16]} On the other hand, consumption of whole milk, yogurt, and cheese may increase SCC risk in susceptible people.^[17] In addition, meat and fat dietary pattern can increase the risk of SCC in people without a history of SCC, but the association is again more prominent in people with a history of skin cancer.^[18] Tobacco smoking and a dietary pattern characterized by high beer and liquor intake also increase the risk of SCC significantly.^{[19][15]}
